Monday, April 5: RED TIER: Substantial risk – some non-essential indoor business operations are closed

Arcata Bottom grow downsized, delayed

Kevin L. Hoover
MAD RIVER UNION

ARCATA BOTTOM – Planning Commission consideration of Arcata Land Company's [ALC] proposed industrial cannabis grow on the Arcata Bottom was delayed last week at the request of the applicant, Lane DeVries.

While DeVries wanted the matter continued from April 1 to the Planco's April 15 meeting, that agenda is already packed. Planning Director John Ford said the project, which has drawn intense citizen involvement, deserved its own special meeting. Commissioners agreed, and set one for April 22.

There were significant developments though, outside the halls of government. Faced with a wall of opposition from area residents, environmental and agriculture advocates, and a cannabis industry group, DeVries appeared to be maneuvering to reset the project, both in scale and in public perception.

The Humboldt County Growers Alliance has fiercely opposed the 23-acre "mega-grow," citing potentially catastrophic impacts on Humboldt's current cannabis farmers and industry. In letters to the Planco, it has argued that the county's Commercial Cannabis Land Use Ordinance (CCLUO) prohibits a single owner from having a grow over eight acres in size.

While still maintaining that the 22.9-acre grow is permitted under the county's CCLUO, DeVries, through his land manager Jordan Main, proposed reducing the project to 12 acres – eight for cultivation and four for a commercial nursery. "ALC is willing to reduce the total cultivation acreage from nearly 23 acres to just 8 acres, accompanied by a 4-acre commercial nursery," Main wrote in a March 28 letter to Natalynne DeLapp, executive director of the Humboldt County Growers Alliance (HCGA). "The reduced-scale project is a major reduction from the project that ALC has been working on diligently with the County over the last four years, but we think this project would be a success for HCGA, the community, and ALC."

The offer was swiftly rejected by the HCGA. In a March 31 response, DeLapp stated, "The CCLUO states that 'no more than eight acres of Commercial Cannabis cultivation

HUMBOLDT – Spread of COVID-19 in Humboldt County continues and restrictions are also likely to, as a steady stream of cases is expected for the next several weeks.

And the scale of spread is wider than confirmed case numbers suggest, as testing has dropped significantly.

The county is now in the red level of the state's tier of COVID-19 risk assessment, meaning presence of the disease is "substantial."

Capacity restrictions on restaurants and other businesses and activities are in effect and other businesses, such as bars, remain closed.

A move into the orange or "moderate" tier had been described as a near future possibility but county Health Officer Dr. Ian Hoffman now sees the red tier status as a more established trend.

"I think we're still looking at weeks before a potential move to the orange tier and I think we also have to keep a close eye on the national trends," he said in a March 31 media availability video. "What we're seeing nationally right now is a 15 percent increase over the past week of cases."

He added that the national trend is beginning to be seen regionally, as Del Norte County and southern Oregon have each seen an "uptick" in cases.

"So we're keeping a close eye on things but for now it looks like we're going to be pretty solid in the red for the next few weeks," Hoffman said.

The risk is actually greater than case numbers suggest. At this point, confirmations of cases don't portray the actual scale of spread because testing has decreased.

"More than likely what we're seeing is just that our case rates are actually lower because people aren't getting tested and so if we're testing more, we'd probably be picking up a lot more cases," Hoffman said.

McK Town Center planning enters next phase

Ordinance requested

Jack Durham
MAD RIVER UNION

McKINLEYVILLE – After nearly a year and a half of public meetings about the McKinleyville Town Center, the McKinleyville Municipal Advisory Committee voted unanimously March 31 to direct the Humboldt County Planning Department to create a draft land use ordinance for the heart of the community.

The vote brings to an end the first phase of planning for the McKinleyville Town Center.

Since the fall of 2019, the McKMAC has held numerous meetings to discuss the community's vision for the Town Center. The advisory committee has discussed wetlands, open space, trails, roadways and mixed use development, much of it

BLUE LAKE – The term "agrovoltaic" is on the map in the Blue Lake area with the approval of a 26-acre solar power project combined with agricultural activities.

Located about a half-mile from the intersection of Hatchery Road and West End Road, the project will generate four megawatts of power per year – enough to provide electricity for 1,200 homes.

Its location on two agriculture-zoned parcels aligns with the county's General Plan, which allows a mix with energy projects. The permit applicant, Renewable Properties, LLC, will maintain agricultural use through grazing and creation of a beekeeping "pollinator meadow."

Those elements were discussed as the county's Planning Commission held a permit hearing at its April 1 meeting.

County Planner Joshua Dorris said the solar array will consist of 14,000 panels with a maximum height of eight feet.

The project is a breakthrough in the county's quest to expand locally-generated power with renewable sources. It's also a first effort in what a written staff report describes as "a growing understanding that agriculture and photovoltaic systems can effectively co-exist."

The term to describe that is "agrovoltaic," according to the staff report.

"This is somewhat charting new waters," Dorris told commissioners.

The project has gained substantial support but the county has also fielded written and videoconference comments on potential visual and noise impacts.

Dorris displayed pre- and post-development renderings showing minimal visual changes to the project site. The panels will track the position of the sun through motor-driven

Testing has dropped off, but remains important

COUNTY OF HUMBOLDT
HUMBOLDT – The number of residents testing for COVID-19 has dropped considerably in recent months as vaccination rates increase, leading health officials to push for continued testing.

"Testing is critical to reducing disease spread in the community," said Hava Phillips, Public Health Clinic and Communicable Disease Program supervisor. "It's a lot easier to spread a disease when you don't know you have it."

Testing in Humboldt County is offered at no charge seven days a week (7 a.m. to 7 p.m.) at Redwood Acres in Eureka and is also available at various locations throughout the county each weekday.

Walk-ins are welcome at all sites, and turnaround time for results averages 48 to 72 hours. The full schedule:

- Eureka – Seven days a week, 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. (Redwood Acres, 3750 Harris St.)
- Arcata – Mondays, 8 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. (Arcata Community Center, 321 M.L.K. Jr. Pkwy.)

Covid | Rush to cut cases, outrun variants

He believes there's reason to be "cautiously optimistic" with the roll-out of vaccines and also noted the "overwhelming desire to get back to normal life."

Some leeway toward doing that has been introduced since last winter's spike in cases subsided but Hoffman advised people to "slow down and not push too hard for even more reopening."

The cautious tone was reiterated in an April 2 county press release which described testing as a "critical piece to the end the pandemic" and said that it has "dropped considerably in recent months."

Containing the spread of the virus has high stakes because increased transmissibility and antibody resistance are troubling evolutionary trends.

"A big concern among public health officials is that a vaccine-resistant variant will develop before we are able to get it under control," said county Communicable Disease Program Supervisor Hava Phillips in the press release.

The county is submitting some positive samples for variant screening but Phillips said that "when people don't get tested it takes longer to identify that new variants are spreading, which slows down research and response."

The most prevalent coronavirus variant in the state, formerly known as L452R and now named CAL.20C, has been detected in Humboldt and was recently categorized as a Variant of Concern by the CDC due to its more robust antibody resistance.

In the video, Hoffman said the county "continues to get a few of those" when samples are submitted for genomic sequencing and 18 have been logged so far.

No other variants of concern have been detected locally yet, he continued.

On the vaccination front, the state has set April 15 as the date when a substantial eligibility category — people ages 16 years and up — will open.

Those ages 50 and up will be eligible starting April 1.

But Hoffman warned against setting expectations based on those dates. "Whenever we open up a new eligibility tier, there is unlikely to be enough vaccine for everyone in that tier to get vaccinated right away," he said.

He added that the federal government is projecting that vaccine supply will double in the next four to six weeks.

"We have been hearing this for a little while though, so we've been preparing for this and we hopefully will be prepared if and when that does come," he said.

On April 1, the county announced that 22,365 residents or about 16.5 percent of Humboldt's population have been fully vaccinated.

Last week saw confirmation of 45 cases. A new hospitalization last week brought the county's total to 136 and an elderly resident died, bringing the total number of COVID-19 deaths to 36.

As of April 2, the county's total number of cases was 3,492.

A Saturday in the life of Redwood Pals Rescue, and playful, tidy Cole

Week 55. A busy week in the world of Redwood Pals Rescue as we move forward with placements and adoptions while still keeping an eye on the new shelter arrivals and gearing up for the ones with special needs. Here's a peek into a normal Saturday for the Redwood Pals team:

❖ DOGTOWN Mara Segal

Saturday morning activities start with our weekly pack walk in the Arcata Bottom. Some weeks this may be the only time our own dogs see us for the rest of the day! The walk takes a little over an hour and gives us a chance to give each other any updates.

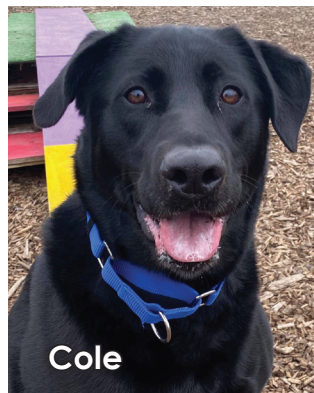

On this Saturday, each of us had a different set of dogs to care for after the walk. Ashley took our two foster puppies to the vet, brought them back to their foster home, headed to the shelter to walk dogs, then back to the puppies for a meet and greet with a prospective adopter.

Jim took one of our longer residents to his weekend placement in Fortuna (second visit this week), arranged for a trainer to help the dog settle in, and made it back to McKinleyville in time to walk a shelter dog and then be home for the puppy meet.

Jeanne helped get the rest of the shelter dogs walked between the puppy arrivals and departures from her house.

My job for the day was to check on a different dog that we had placed the day before, walk a few dogs at the shelter, reply to dog texts and emails, and then go give a recently adopted litter — 10 puppies! — their second vaccinations at a reunion at their foster home. Whew!

Cole

One of our current rescue dogs is Cole, a four-year-old neutered male Lab. What makes a handsome dog like this a rescue dog? He's good with everyone he meets, pleasant towards other dogs and well-trained.

Technically, Cole is at the shelter as a result of a bite. I would say this dog was failed by his humans. For whatever it's worth, this isn't just conjecture; I actually spoke with his former owner. She said that her great grand-child had been tormenting poor Cole for a year.

In addition to extreme tail-pulling and ear-poking, the child had actually bit the dog several times! ("Where were the parents," I hear you ask...)

At the time of the bite, the dog was trapped under a blanket. The owner felt that she couldn't take Cole back with the current situation though she kept telling me what a great dog he is. He did not react at all to the gentle pulling of his tail or ears, our most basic kid test.

With all that in mind, we carefully introduced Cole to a family and then took him to meet their small school pod of seven year old children. Cole was very well-behaved, playing fetch with each of them in turn and then resting in the shade in between.

Cole is house trained, rides great in the car, plays with toys but doesn't destroy them, fetches balls on land or sticks in the water with equal pleasure, and knows a good collection of commands.

When I had Cole inside for some play time I saw that he will actually pick up his toys and put them back in the bucket! There's a good trick. Cole does not appear to be interested in cats or livestock.

ARCATA – Arcata Playhouse hosts two live-streamed music performances with local artists in April.

After a successful trial run of the Arcata Playhouse four camera live-streaming system, the Playhouse is ready to hosts some lively and all live local streamed music shows in April.

Starting with local sensation the SoHum Girls Band, an iconic Humboldt band that originally hailed from the southern reaches of the country.

Dance music best describes the joyous strains that include a variety of genres: blues, rock, second line, ballads, country, skiffle, with a splash of funk. All original music from the writing duo: Marcia Mendels and Chris Manspeaker.

This little band has sustained during COVID lockdowns playing outdoors during warmer months and now with the vaccine paving the way, rehearsals happily continue. This is not just a band but also a social club where they support, dine, drink and boost each other up. You can feel it in their performance. Town Center | Project now goes to county planners for draft ordinance centered on the undeveloped property located behind the McKinleyville Shopping Center.

This input will now be used by the staff of the Humboldt County Planning Department to create a draft ordinance for the Town Center, which stretches from McKinleyville Avenue to Pierson Park and from Railroad Drive to an area roughly near Heartwood Drive.

The county is working with local architect Kash Boodjeh, who is creating drawings that will be included in the ordinance.

“My hope is that the words and drawings together will be a nice, tight package,” said Supervising Planner Michael Richardson, who said that Boodjeh is working “feverishly” on the drawings, which may be completed in a few weeks.

The committee’s decision to move forward came about after a discussion about “key themes” that emerged during public input at the March 24 meeting. McKMAC Chair Maya Conrad compiled the list and presented it to the McKMAC.

However, some participants objected to the list because it didn’t include everything that was said at the meeting, or at prior meetings.

McKMAC member Greg Orsini found a way around the problem and made a motion to direct planning staff to draft an ordinance using all of the input received since the fall of 2019. The motion was ultimately approved by the committee.

“At some point we need to be considerate of the planning department because this isn’t the only work they’ve got to do,” Orsini said during the meeting. “I think it’s time for us to say enough is enough and let’s move on to the next part of this process.”

Rather than discussing the Town Center in generalities, the committee will be able to review the actual proposed land use regulations when it receives the draft ordinance.

“Really, where the rubber hits the road, is the ordinance,” said McKMAC member Patrick Kaspari.

Madrone. “I applaud you for your work and your commitment. You guys have really been carrying some heavy water and you are doing a great job.”

Walking, biking

This summer, the McKMAC will also provide input for what’s being called the “McKinleyville Multimodal Connections Project Plan,” which will identify options for enhanced safety and connectivity for walking and biking between McKinleyville and north Arcata and to the McKinleyville Town Center.

Humboldt County Public Works is paying for the study using a $196,700 Caltrans Sustainable Transportation Planning Grant. Emily Sinkhorn of the Redwood Community Action Agency is leading the effort.

Sinkhorn told the McKMAC that there will be meetings with small groups and there will be virtual meetings early this summer to get input on the plan. The next McKMAC meeting is Wednesday, April 28 from 6 to 8 p.m. Agendas for the McKMAC meetings are posted at humboldt.gov.org/238/McKinleyville-Municipal-Advisory-Committ.

Participants will have the opportunity to gain real life work experience and leadership skills all while having fun in the sun. The Leader in Training Program experience can also count toward community service requirements and looks great on a college application. Participants must be 13 years old by Monday, June 14, or former Arcata Recreation campers who will turn 13 in Fall 2021 may be eligible to work at camps serving our younger age groups.

The program runs from Monday, June 14 through Friday, Aug. 20, and participation fees are $18 per week for Arcata residents plus a $2 non-resident fee per registration.

Fees for five or more weeks are $90 for Arcata residents or $100 for non-residents. For more information, email rec@cityofarcata.org or call (707) 822-7091.

Parents and caregivers are encouraged to enroll campers in the same camp for two consecutive weeks whenever possible to reduce exposure to new groups or individuals.

Payment plans are available, and payment plan arrangements can only be accommodated via email or by phone.

Two found zonked in McK vehicle

Man shot, two sought

HUMBOLDT COUNTY SHERIFF'S OFFICE
McKINLEYVILLE – On Saturday, March 27 at about 7:47 p.m., Humboldt County Sheriff's deputies were dispatched to a business on the 1100 block of Murray Road in McKinleyville for the report of two people unconscious inside a vehicle parked outside the business.

While attempting to contact the individuals, deputies observed narcotics in plain view on the male driver's lap.

Deputies were able to wake the two, who exhibited signs of being under the influence of a narcotic substance.

Deputies seized the narcotics, which were later confirmed to be over one gram of cocaine, over one gram of methamphetamine, and multiple Xanax pills.

Both subjects were detained and searched. During a search of the driver, identified as 27-year-old Luke Allen Patrick Olsen-Smith, deputies located metal knuckles.

Olsen-Smith was arrested and booked into the Humboldt County Correctional Facility on charges of possession of metal knuckles, disorderly conduct under the influence and possession of a controlled substance.

The passenger of the vehicle, identified as 23-year-old Angelina Lily Faircloth, was booked into the Humboldt County Cor-

Officers located a 27-year-old male with gunshot wounds and rendered medical aid until he was transported to Mad River Community Hospital in serious but stable condition.

Investigators learned the victim was involved in an altercation with two males in the parking lot that resulted in gunfire. The suspects were last seen fleeing on foot.

The suspects are considered armed and dangerous:

- Luke Allen Patrick Olsen-Smith, DOB: 10-09-1993
- Tonka Jody Gritts, DOB: 08-31-1992

This is an ongoing investigation and anyone with information as to the suspects' whereabouts is encouraged to contact the Arcata Police Department's Investigations Division.

According to the victim, the suspect later returned, discharged a firearm at the victim, then fled into a nearby mobile home park.

Through further investigation, mechanisms which create minimal noise, he said.

Traffic impacts will be also be minimal because the only employees on-site will be those who do maintenance checks six times a year.

The solar-generated power will be fed into the grid and managed by the Redwood Coast Energy Authority (RCEA), the county's energy agency.

Renewable Properties has done solar projects throughout the country.

Aaron Halimi, the company's president, noted that state law requires 100 percent of electric retail sales to be sourced from zero-carbon sources by 2045. "Everyone needs to do their part in California," he said.

During a public comment period, some people who live near the site questioned whether alternative locations could be used and said a chain link fence surrounding the site would create visual impact.

There was also some doubt expressed about whether the agricultural use will be enough to comply with a "no net loss" policy.

But comments were mostly in support of the project. Energy researcher Jim Zoellick, who helped the county develop its General Plan Energy Element, said the project is "exactly the type of project that the Energy Element intended to encourage."

He added, "For us to mitigate our carbon footprint, we cannot just purchase renewable energy from outside the area."

One commenter described objections to the project as "anachronistic" and another said the visual impact of solar panels will be positive.

"For me, when I see the solar panels out there – hopefully – they will be quite beautiful because what I will see is an alternative to the impending ravages of climate change," she said.

WHERE IT'S AT The location of the massive photovoltaic solar installation off Hatchery Road. VIA COUNTY OF HUMBOLDT

Kit Mann recalled the county's denial of the Terra-Gen wind energy project in late 2019 and said that it "kind of said to outside energy developers that maybe we weren't ready for alternative energy projects."

Rejecting this one would "set a disastrous precedent in that large green energy projects would be very hesitant to come to Humboldt County because we are not a welcoming community."

Most commissioners did welcome the project, with Commissioner Brian Mitchell declaring that "we are in the middle of a climate emergency" before he made a motion to approve its conditional use permit.

Commissioner Mike Newman cast the only dissent vote. He had asked Halimi if overhead power transmission lines can be undergrounded and was told that it would trigger a major redesign and significantly delay the project.

tion permits may be issued to a single Person" (55.4.5.4.1). The CCLUO also clearly defines 'Commercial Cannabis Cultivation' to include nurseries. For purposes of the eight acre limitation in the CCLUO, the revised project proposal is for twelve acres of cultivation."

DeLapp said that if the project can truly be reduced to eight acres, HCGA will remove its opposition. DeVries didn't return a request for comment before deadline.

Apart from those pivotal epistles, letters of comment sent to the Planning Commission since its previous meeting were overwhelmingly and staunchly opposed to the project.

Meanwhile, opponents have consolidated their objections and organizing around a new website, savethearcatabottoms.com. They've also been petitioning, and delivered anti-grow petitions signed by 400 citizens to the Planco in advance of last week's meeting. A Zoom meeting among members of "Team 27" – an informal name for the opposition group based on many members' 27th Street residency – was planned for this week.

The ALC's downsizing proposal was seen by some as a precedent for "piecemealing" the eventual saturation of the Bottoms with similar grows, even as the area becomes increasingly residential.

"If this passes, there's no turning back," said 27th Streeter Paula Proctor, who noted the imminent creation of senior housing at the nearby Creek Side Homes project. "There will be a lot of people affected by that," she said, referring to the ALC grow.

Another new wrinkle was potential opposition by at least one business with ties to Sun Valley Floral Farms (SVFF). In a letter to the group, Eureka Natural Foods Administrative Office Graigory Fillmore said labor and environmental issues raised about SVFF have led to a review. "I wanted to reach out and let you know that we have opened an investigation into our relationship with Sun Valley," Fillmore wrote. "Environmental impact and employment practices are extremely important to us as an organization... I will be reviewing all information regarding this issue in an attempt to find a solution."

An announcement made by Arcata Bottom resident Sean Armstrong about a site walk-through meeting for 10 selected citizens which he and DeVries had arranged was immediately rejected by the Team 27 group. Group members eschewed any selective representation, and suggested the move was an accommodationist tactic by Armstrong, whose Tule Fog Farm is partly sited on land owned by DeVries.

"Our group is not OK with their eight-plus-four rewrite," said opponent Kim Puckett. She said the project still carries too many unresolved issues, and needs an EIR "at a bare minimum."

"My position is 'no'," she said.

Love Over Hate

On Sunday, March 21, Humboldt Asians & Pacific Islanders (HAPI) in Solidarity hosted a vigil, “Love Over Hate,” to honor and remember the victims of the tragic Atlanta shootings.

This peaceful, thoughtful, and loving walking vigil was held on the grounds of the Humboldt Unitarian Universalist Fellowship (HUUF) in Bayside.

We want to acknowledge several organizations and 30-plus volunteers who helped to make this vigil possible: HUUF Board and volunteers who co-hosted the event; Sun Valley Floral who donated beautiful flowers; Cooperation Humboldt who brought many volunteers to support and help; and Gary Ronne and Humboldt Taiko for the beautiful rhythmic Taiko drumming.

Special thanks to Pat Girczyc for coordinating the many volunteers.

In a letter written to the Asian Americans Advancing Justice-Atlanta organization (AAJC-Atlanta), we enclosed a cashier’s check (cash donations) and personal checks totaling $2,765.93.

These generous donations were collected at the vigil for the families of the victims, to be distributed to them by AAJC-Atlanta. We are very appreciative of our community for their support, compassion and generosity.

We are grateful for the many hours our volunteers gave to the vigil and to the hundreds of community members who braved that cold windy afternoon to express grief and caring.

HAPI has posted a video filmed by a member of our group, Chisato Hughes: youtu.be/XaNIDRXpf7s.

Words cannot express enough the gratitude of the Asian and Pacific Islander communities here to have so many in our community stand up to hate and mourn for the victims.

Everything’s upside down

A community leader was recently stabbed in front of his own business. I call my friend Jeff a leader, not because his is a successful businessman – although he is, but because he is all about bettering our community, through volunteerism, support, involvement, and love of family and friends. How is it that this happened? But, more importantly, there seems to be little outrage outside of his close circle. The police officer on scene actually scolded him for approaching the “bums” that were vandalizing his building, aka throwing trash at the structure while nonchalantly enjoying a convenient corner; all of this during business hours! While waiting for the ambulance and holding his protruding guts, the police officer also lectured him about not having the front door to his business locked at all times. Hmmm am I the only one that thinks things are really upside down? We the tax paying, working class, follow the rules types are having to lock ourselves in buildings to protect ourselves from those that break the law, vandalize our properties, don’t contribute and apparently stab people with knives when they are asked to behave. Apparently, this guy is a two-time stabbing offender. When are our representatives going to start showing at least some empathy towards us? I’ve witnessed this slippery slope of community activism geared exclusively toward those who abuse the liberties of law-abiding people. The civil liberties of the less fortunate is noble, but the disconnect is that it has facilitated a culture of filth, private as well as public property damage, unsanitary conditions, and now more frequently personal injury. All of this happening, while we are told because we choose to work hard and take care of our families and communities that we are “privileged” (a trigger word, I know) and could not possibly relate to the very people that we now find ourselves retreating from – locking our doors, not walking on our trails, avoiding public parks etc... Is this really proactive compassion, allowing a take over of our beloved public spaces while allowing drug use and squalor? I’m 72 years old and have lived in Humboldt County, almost my entire life. I have witnessed the decay of our beautiful county. I know the problem of vagrancy, drug addiction, and homelessness is complicated, but I don’t think the answer is forgetting about those who do keep the economic and community engine running. Let’s see some justice for those of us who don’t have the time to protest our feelings of abandonment because we get up and go to work every morning.

No card, no access

If we are to get ahead of this pandemic we need folks to get vaccinated. Restaurants, bars, music festivals etc should open up for the summer.

Your attendance should depend on the vax card that are given to all when they receive the injections. No card, no going to those venues.

Those that choose to not be vaccinated will forfeit the right to attend these events but still have the right to believe their 5G cell phone causes COVID if they wish. Musicians should be held to the same standard. No worries if they refuse. You will still have the right to sit home and play the chord changes to “Smoke On the Water” endlessly, if desired.

ALC’s grow-downsizing proposal and HCGA’s critical response

March 28, 2021
Natalynne DeLapp
Executive Director
Humboldt County Growers Alliance
RE: Arcata Land Company Proposed Project
Dear Natalynne:

Thank you again for your time this morning. We appreciated your insight and candidness regarding the Humboldt County Growers Alliance (“HCGA”) membership’s concerns over Arcata Land Company’s (“ALC”) proposed 23-acre cannabis project at ALC’s existing flower production facility in Arcata.

ALC’s project, as described to the Planning Commission last week, is allowed under and satisfies all requirements under the Humboldt County Code. Even so, ALC is sensitive to the concerns expressed in HCGA’s March 15 letter to the Commission regarding the project. ALC is also sensitive to the concerns of neighbors and other community members expressed in comment letters and through testimony at the last Commission hearing. ALC prides itself on being a responsible member of the Humboldt County community, a reputation that has been built over the last 30 years.

The reduced-scale project addresses community and HCGA’s concerns regarding the scale of the project...

In this connection, ALC is willing to radically reduce the scale of its project to address the community and HCGA’s concerns. In particular, ALC is willing to reduce the total cultivation acreage from nearly 23 acres to just 8 acres, accompanied by a 4-acre commercial nursery. The 8 acres of cultivation would be comprised of approximately 5.7 acres of mixed-light cultivation and 2.3 acres of light-deprivation cultivation. ALC would support the cultivation and nursery components being entitled under two separate permits, as we understand is HCGA’s preference. ALC’s existing hoop houses, previously part of the project, would instead remain in flower production.

The reduced-scale project addresses community and HCGA’s concerns regarding the scale of the project, will use less water, require fewer employees, use less energy, be situated further from sensitive receptors, generate less traffic, and will continue to use state-of-the-art odor control technology. The commercial nursery will provide a sustainable source of local strains for Humboldt County growers and will not produce odors associated with flowering cannabis. The reduced-scale project is a major reduction from the project that ALC has been working on diligently with the County over the last four years, but we think this project would be a success for HCGA, the community, and ALC.

Again, we appreciate your time and attention. Please feel free to contact me with any questions or concerns.

Sincerely,
Jordan Main

March 31, 2021
Humboldt County 825 5th Street
Eureka, CA 95501
Dear Planning Commission,

On behalf of Humboldt County Growers Alliance, we are writing to clarify our position on size limitations in Humboldt’s cannabis cultivation ordinances, and express our opposition to projects that exceed eight acres of cultivation, inclusive of nursery space.

We are also writing to update our March 15 letter based on additional information and research which has come to light since the March 18 Planning Commission meeting.

HCGA Opposes Projects With More Than Eight Acres of Cumulative Nursery and

Mature Plant Cultivation Space

In our March 15 letter to the Planning Commission on the proposed 23 acre Arcata Land Company project, we wrote the following:

“At its current scale, HCGA opposes the project as proposed. However, if the project is reduced in size to eight acres or less - the largest scale contemplated in either land use ordinance - HCGA will remove its opposition.”

On March 30, Arcata Land Company sent HCGA a proposal in writing that suggested a willingness to reduce the scale of the project to eight acres of mature plant cultivation, and four acres of nursery space. Arcata Land Company has expressed that they believe this revised project would satisfy the request in HCGA’s March 15 letter.

After reviewing the language in Humboldt’s cannabis ordinances, and discussing with our membership, we do not agree. The CCLUO states that “no more than eight acres of Commercial Cannabis cultivation permits may be issued to a single Person” (55.4.5.4.1). The CCLUO also clearly defines “Commercial Cannabis Cultivation” to include nurseries. For purposes of the eight acre limitation in the CCLUO, the revised project proposal is for twelve acres of cultivation.

Additionally, the CCLUO states that eight acres is the limitation for “a single Person.” A “Person” is defined broadly in the CCLUO, not just to include the company that holds a permit, but also to include individuals involved in the operation of the permit, including a CEO or an individual “participating in the direction, control, or management of the permit holder.”

Arcata Land Company has proposed that, if the project is approved, it would be sold or leased to persons with existing cultivation operations in Humboldt County. If this transfer of ownership or management takes place, the total cultivation area within Humboldt County held by any single person should not exceed eight acres.

As expressed in our March 15 letter, the language in 55.4.5.4.1 is the only community-wide agreement that has been reached in Humboldt County regarding the permissible maximum size for cultivation operations. Enforcing the letter of this ordinance is necessary to stand by the land use principles in Humboldt’s ordinances, and to ensure that all operators are held to the same standards. If the County does not hold the line at 8 acres, based on the wording in 55.4.5.4.1, there is no other objective brightline in Humboldt’s ordinances to limit the size of industrial-scale cultivation projects.

For purposes of the eight acre limitation in the CCLUO, the revised project proposal is for twelve acres of cultivation.

Additional Concerns Following March 18 Planning Commission Meeting

We would also like to raise several points which were not included in our March 15 letter, but which have come to our attention either due to new information which has been disclosed about the project, or additional research over the past few weeks.

First, the Planning Commission should consider the legislative intent at the time Ordinance 1.0 was passed by the Supervisors on January 26, 2016, when cultivation acreage was expected to be capped at the state level. Up until November 14, 2017, cultivation size was planned to be capped at between one and four acres based on language in the MMRSA, Proposition 64, and a draft environmental impact report released by CDFA. On November 16, 2017, this regulation was pulled, enabling the “license-stacking” loophole that now exists to allow for unlimited-scale cultivation. (See “California’s Limit on Big Growers Just Vanished. Here’s Why,” leafly.com/news/politics/californias-limit-on-big-growers-just-vanished-heres-why). If an explicit cap on industrial-zoned cultivation was not included in Ordinance 1.0, this should be considered in the context of the applicable state laws at the time.

For example, a Lost Coast Outpost article covering the Ordinance 1.0 process on January 12, 2016 stated the following:

“The Planning Commission, in contrast, proposed allowing outdoor grows of up to 20,000 square feet with only a zoning clearance certificate and grows larger than that — up to the state limit of one acre — with a Conditional Use Permit.” (“Supervisors Opt to Ban New Grows on Timberland in Final Draft of Medical Marijuana Land Use Ordinance” lostcoastoutpost.com/2016/jan/12/supervisors-finish-directing-staff-medical-marijua/)

Second, Section 55.4.8.10 of Ordinance 1.0 states that “No more than four commercial cannabis activity permits of any type... may be issued to a single person, as defined herein.” Both Arcata Land Company and the proposed operators of the project hold multiple existing cannabis permits in Humboldt County.

Specifically, the Arcata Land Company already holds three (3) Special Permits with Humboldt County for its processing, manufacturing, and distribution facility (permit # 2019-15594, APN: 506-231-010-00). The CEO of Headwaters, under the name “Soul Arc Solutions,” maintains two Conditional Use Permits in Humboldt County (permits # PLN-12085-CUP and PLN-11402-CUP).

In other words, Arcata Land Company currently holds three permits for manufacturing, if they add two additional permits for nursery and cultivation, they will have five permits, which would be in violation of Section 55.4.8.10. Headwaters already has two county cultivation permits. If Headwaters assumes operation of the three special permits and the cultivation and nursery permits, they would hold seven permits, in violation of Section 55.4.8.10.

We appreciate the willingness of Arcata Land Company to consider alternative proposals in response to community feedback. If the project is revised to less than eight acres of total size, and if it is in conformance with other legal restrictions, HCGA will remove its opposition.

For reference, relevant sections of Ordinance 1.0 and 2.0 are copied in full on the following pages.

Sincerely,
Natalynne DeLapp

Hammond Trail extension workshop slated for April 19

The Trinidad Coastal Land Trust will present a Little River Trail Virtual Workshop on Monday, April 19 from 5:30 to 7 p.m. to learn about the project which will connect the Westhaven-Trinidad area to the Hammond Coastal Trail.

The virtual workshop will highlight preliminary opportunities and constraints for trail design and alignment and engage community members in the preliminary design considerations.

The project is in the preliminary design and environmental documentation phase. Public support will be essential to advance this and future phases of the trail.

Community members are welcome to share their experiences and input on the project through an on-line survey. Go to the TCLT website, trinidad-coastallandtrust.org to find out more or call the TCLT office at (707) 677-2501.

In other TCLT news, naturalist Michelle Kunst writes: “Have you ever noticed tiny holes in the ground in the forest and wondered who they belong to?...They are the burrows of turret spiders; a small relative of tarantulas. These ground dwelling spiders construct a silken tube held ridged by soil and plant materials. Turret spiders will lurk inside their dark burrows and can sense the vibration of approaching small insect prey. Besides snagging food, they rarely leave their burrow and are though to live up to 16 years. Keep a keen eye out for turret spider burrows next time you take a stroll in a moist Trinidad Forest.”

Trinidad featured in ‘Coastal Living’

The April 2021 issue of Coastal Living has two beautiful color photographs of the Trinidad area and a short article emphasizing the charm and desirability of Trinidad and other coastal towns.

Driving through town after a few days away last week, I observed more cars at the beaches and lanes and Saunders Plaza than I’ve ever seen. Visitors clearly are eager for fresh air and natural beauty after a year of being cooped up inside.

Case managers, mental health clinicians join APD call response

APD/DHHS
ARCATA – Four days a week, a mental health clinician or case manager is stationed at the Arcata Police Department (APD) and goes on calls with officers to conduct outreach and follow up with people in the community who need assistance. The collaboration between APD and Humboldt County Department of Health & Human Services (DHHS) Behavioral Health is known as the Mobile Intervention & Services Team or MIST, and pairs police and mental health professionals to work with people in need of help stabilizing their mental health and securing services and assistance to avoid frequent interactions with law enforcement. APD Sgt. Brian Hoffman said the partnership is a valuable one. “Our officers are experienced in dealing with these issues and do so every day, but the reality is we do not have the institutional knowledge of what services are readily available at any given time and are also pertinent to each situation.” That’s where DHHS Behavioral Health Case Manager Shao-Lan Lew-Smith comes in. Three years ago, Lew-Smith was training at the Police Academy when she decided to make a change and left early to take a position at the county’s psychiatric health facility Sempervirens. “I realized the happiest I’ve been in my professional life was working in mental health,” she said. But that experience at the academy helped her gain a broader perspective which aids her in her job today. “I can see where the police are coming from and from the client’s point of view,” she said.

While the MIST program has been in Humboldt County since 2015, this particular group of officers and Behavioral Health staff have only been working together for a few weeks, but Lew-Smith said so far, it’s been positive. “The officers have compassion for people, but they’re coming from the enforcement standpoint and don’t really have the time or the experience to listen to what is going on with the person and what the person is telling them.” Sgt. Hoffman agrees. “With calls for service always accumulating we have difficulty finding the time needed to bring some of these situations to a resolution that require extended assistance and time. MIST personnel are able to provide the time and nurturing needed to make the most out of a situation.” Lew-Smith and Mental Health Clinician Keely Page are each stationed at APD twice a week and get dispatched with officers for behavioral health-related calls. The officer and case manager or clinician take separate vehicles so that if it is safe, and necessary to provide more assistance, the clinician or case manager can stay. “I do follow up with clients who I have previously outreached to, helping clients with housing applications, applying for General Relief and Section 8 and linking them to mental health and social services,” Lew-Smith said. “Where MIST really enhances these services is applying their knowledge of what is needed in each situation, be it a mental health crisis, someone wanting sobriety services or needing a safe place to sleep, and being able to immediately follow through with assistance,” Sgt. Hoffman said. Aside from being able to identify needed services and assisting in connecting people to them, having a non-uniformed presence can also be a real attribute when creating a connection with those in need, Hoffman said. “I have seen firsthand what MIST can do partnered with APD officers on the street and look forward to pushing the boundaries of what policing can accomplish when coupled with social services.”
